TECHNIQUE 1907.

This Year's Annual Fully up to Standard.
Review of Contents.

Technique 1907, soon to appear, well deserves the interest with which live Tech men always hail the issuance of their college annual. The aim has evidently been not so much to innovate or to startle as to maintain worthily and to develop excellence along existing lines. This year's is not distinctively a Technique of extravagant "features" or of wildly spectacular surprises. The general scheme of arrangement is much the same as that of previous years. This is to the advantage of Technique, considered as a record, from year to year, of Institute activities; it in no way detracts from the effective originality of those parts where individuality is especially desirable.

Typographically, the annual is a trifle less ambitious than that of last year, but thoroughly admirable in its attainment. There is less color printing; but that which appears, though somewhat impressionistic, is impressive. Particularly noteworthy are the inserts introducing "Fraternalities" and "Junior Week." The drawings, perhaps not so elaborate as those of last year, are often strikingly good,—much better than the work, frequently of professionals, in the annuals of most colleges.

More space is devoted to athletics than last year. It is now possible to get, so far as the reviewer is aware, a complete chronicle of the athletic teams of the Institute from the successive volumes of Technique, except in the cases of hockey and tennis teams. It would seem as though, for the sake of the completeness of the record, contests of these teams with collegiate opponents should be recorded; certainly this should be done with regard to the regular and established tennis tournaments of the New England Intercollegiate Tennis Association, whose trophy, by the way, already bears several times the name of Tech,—once from last year.

The "literary" work, in the broadest sense of the term, in any college annual, is what gives it poignancy and real individuality. In this number the Dedication will meet with hearty approval from generations of Tech men. The "Foreword" is especially worth noting, for both form and content. Toward the close there is, perhaps, a slight let-down in the artistic tension, but on the whole the piece is an admirable achievement of a kind not often even attempted at Tech.

The institutional humor is distinctly good. There will be many a smile the moment the pages of the class history of 1908 strike the eye. The working out of this "history" is personal, as distinct from institutional; hence appreciation of the detailed execution will vary according to the reader's sympathy with

PRESIDENT FAUNCE SPEAKS.

Excellent Address Given at General Convocation Monday.

President Faunce of Brown University was the speaker at the general convocation held in Huntington Hall Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock. The hall was filled some time before the appointed hour and the usual demonstrations of enthusiasm were not lacking. In introducing the speaker President Pritchett said that it was quite appropriate at this, the beginning of Junior Week, to have such a man to give the students some ideas which would set them thinking, and the talk which followed contained good advice for all young men.

In opening his remarks President Faunce compared the students with their enthusiasm to a lot of steam engines with full steam on and ready to go ahead, but needing proper guidance. A young man's future success depends on his attitude toward his education. Everyone should have his ideal. At present there are two classes of colleges, one aiming at culture and the training of the personality, and the other aiming at efficiency. Oxford University as an example of the former trains students without thought for their future calling, while West Point on the other hand makes the personality secondary to the highest efficiency of the soldier. We are learning to be efficient workmen, and in so doing breadth of vision is most essential. Narrow concentration of effort means a loss of the things most worth living for. A man must be able to appreciate values as well as to assimilate facts.

The college of today should be a beginning school only and the man who stops growing as soon as he has gained an education is not going to succeed. The finer idealism which enables him to look into a movement and see the spirit behind it, will lead a man to a higher place in the world. In the words of the Athenian's oath of allegiance, "to leave his country greater than he found it, to not desert his fellow soldier," we must go into the world with an ideal, resolving to reach the highest efficiency by gaining the greatest breadth of vision.

SPRING CONCERT AND DANCE.

The first event of Junior Week at the Institute takes place this evening, when the Glee, Banjo and Mandolin Clubs give their Annual Spring Concert and Dance in the New Century Building.

The matrons are Mrs. George F. Swain, Mrs. Francis W. Chandler, Mrs. Harrison W. Hayward and Mrs. Frank H. Rand. The Reception Committee, who will have charge at the Dance consists of Parker, '06, Chairman, Swett, '07, Gerrish, '08, and Scharff, '09.

The concert program is made up

JUNIOR PROM.

Brilliant Social Event Promised at the Somerset Tomorrow Night.

Final arrangements have been made for the Junior Promenade which promises to surpass any of its predecessors. It will be held at the Somerset Hotel, Thursday evening, April 26, in the big ballroom. There will be no grand march as in previous years but each couple will be presented to the Matrons by ushers. The ushers can be distinguished by a carnation in the buttonhole. The presentation will take place at 8.30 and dancing will start promptly at 9 o'clock. At 12 o'clock supper will be served and it is earnestly hoped that everyone will aid the Committee to prevent crowding. This disagreeable feature of last year's Prom may be avoided by passing in through the left door and out one of the others.

The music will be furnished by the Salem Cadet Band led by the wonderful Missud himself. The ninth dance has been orchestrated from this year's Tech Show.

The Patronesses are a new feature this year and the list includes the names of some of Boston's most select social set and Technology's best friends. The list follows:

Mrs. Curtis Guild, Jr., Mrs. Roger Wolcott, Mrs. William C. Endicott, Jr., Mrs. James M. Crafts, Mrs. George F. Swain, Mrs. Francis L. Higginson, Mrs. Henry S. Pritchett, Mrs. Guy Lowell, Mrs. William T. Sedgwick, Mrs. Eben S. Draper, Mrs. Desire Despradelle, Mrs. A. Lawrence Rotch.

The Matrons are among the number and are as follows:

Mrs. Guy Lowell, Mrs. William C. Endicott, Jr., Mrs. Henry S. Pritchett, Mrs. Eben S. Draper.

SHOW PREPARATIONS COMPLETE.

Tech Show is all ready for its performances of "The Freshman." Indications point to the most successful performance that Tech men have ever given. Not only is the play itself the best that has been produced, but the acting and singing is far superior to any that has gone before.

A great deal of extra work has been required of the management this year because of the rapid shift to Malden, Friday, and the performance in Providence, Saturday. All the details have been arranged, and, provided no unexpected accident occurs, the out-of-town trips will be made with great ease and dispatch.

The sale of seats for this year has been phenomenal. The two Boston houses have been practically sold out, as any one trying at this late hour to get seats has no doubt found out. The same conditions apply at Malden and Providence, as a result of the extensive and systematic advertising, both on billboards and newspapers, which the management has done.

Wednesday, April 25, 1906.

The next issue of THE TECH will be the Junior Week TECH. It will be on sale Monday, April 30. It is the aim of the Editors to make this issue as complete a record of Junior Week as possible.

In almost every college in this country it is safe to say there is a gala week. In most cases it comes at Commencement, but with us at Technology it is found desirable to devote a few days to enjoyment and relaxation during the latter part of the second term, and so we have our Junior Week. To carry out successfully the various undertakings crowded into Junior Week is no small task but the fact that they are successfully carried out is an indication of the magnitude of the social powers of the Tech man. Junior Week with all its varied social events is entirely the production of Tech men. It is a refutation once and for all of the opinion that Tech men cultivate their intellectual powers and disregard the manly graces. To enter into the Junior Week festivities with the Junior Week spirit is to appreciate the value of breadth of vision so helpful for a man's fullest enjoyment of life, and to make the good times stand out so boldly in the background of hard work that the impression which the man carries away from college will be one of enjoyment rather than toil and that the college years will be what they should, "the happiest years of a man's life."

Junior Week.

"You do not need your dress suit for the Technique Rush. It is informal." No, perhaps not, but you do need a Technique Rush. Technique ticket. Don't fail to have it in your hand and have your hand in the, window at twelve o'clock tomorrow when Technique comes out. It is necessary for the customary snap and vim of the rush for every man to put on his old clothes and get there early. The fair Junior Week friend will be there to cheer the winner. The Technique Board promise that you will be in closer touch with your class than ever before. The first twenty Techniques distributed will have Dr. Pritchett's autograph in them, and on the first five books the price will be refunded. Every man come out, get your ticket and an old suit and make this the most impressive rush yet held.

1908 WINS BASEBALL.

Yesterday afternoon the '08 Baseball Team defeated Roxbury Latin School by a score of 5 to 3. The game was called at 4.30 P.M. at Tech Field and lasted for only six innings. Although the score was quite close, the Tech men put up decidedly the better game, Pierce and Ford being particularly good. Aronson was the star for Roxbury. The score by innings was:

	1	2	3	4	5	6	Total
Roxbury	0	2	0	0	1	0	3
Tech	0	0	1	3	1	0	5

Runs—Fox, Macleod, Pierce 2, Daley, Rowell, Plummer, Toppin. Sacrifice hits—Rowell. Stolen bases—Rowell, Daley, Pierce. First base on balls—Everts 2, Toppin 2. First base on errors—Tech '08 2, Roxbury 2. Struck out—Everts 1, Barton 3, Toppin 2. Umpire—Adams.

Summer Work.—A few more men wanted for good paying positions, especially men qualified to teach. See A. C. Nichols, '08, at Cage, 1.05-1.15.

the various mootable, and the reviewer cannot help feeling, regrettable, personalities involved. But the mere selection of this form is, in its way, a master stroke; only, once done it is done for all time. As parody the piece is capital,—not in the working out of its detail, but in the flash of perception that discerned that the thing parodied was thus adaptable.

On the whole the reviewer believes that Technique 1907 will realize, to many a man, its stated aspiration:

"To smooth rough ways and conjure up a smile;"

and, he trusts, equally, to

..... "hold
The heart in generous love for all that makes

Our stern old Tech to us worth while."

Editors and college body alike have good cause to feel gratified with their annual. He who neglects it will miss much cleverness and fun.

of eleven numbers, including a 'Cello Solo by Thompson, '08, Banjo Solo by Fales, '07, and a Tenor Solo by Jenkins, '09. The final number brings all of the clubs on the stage in the famous Stein Song. The clubs are anxious to begin the Concert promptly at eight o'clock, so that the dancing may begin promptly at ten. At the Winter Concert the audience necessitated a late start by not being on time.

The dance order consists of fourteen numbers and will be found on the last page of the program; music will be furnished by Poole's Orchestra. If the dance hall is crowded the management hopes that the fellows will patronize Woolson Hall, where orange frappe and ice cream will be served free.

The evening promises to eclipse all others both in attendance and in the quality of the concert. The body of the house has been sold but a number of good seats may be had this morning in Rogers Corridor or this evening at New Century Building.

MOSES ELECTED VICE-PRES OF '09.

Ballots for Vice-President of the Freshman Class were called in at the Cage Monday afternoon. A. L. Moses, B. E. Hutchinson, and G. L. Lawrence were nominated. Moses was elected by a considerable majority although the number of ballots cast was small as very few class dues had been paid.
